

NYC High-Rise Fire Prompts Calls for Stronger Fire Safety Legislation - by Tom Von Essen, Former Commissioner of NYFD

If a fire breaks out in a residential building, will the occupants know what to do? What emergency communications plan is in place to help reduce the risk of lost lives or lessen injury? <Read More>

Communication is Key to Saving Lives in High-Rise Building Fires - by John Stofa, Honeywell Fire Systems

A follow up of Tom VonEssen's post, NYCHigh-Rise Fire Prompts Calls for Stronger Fire Safety Legislation, expanding the reasons behind including emergency communications systems with your current life safety system. <Read More>

Are POTS going OUT? Changes in Code Create Changes in Communications - by Ken Gentile

More and more facilities are switching to IP/GSM communicators because telephone lines are going away due to costly maintenance and service. Is POTS (Plain Old Telephone Service) history? <Read More>

Can You Hear Me Now? - by Richard Conner

The need for voice evacuation systems has increased over the years. How do you get the message out to the building's occupants clearly? We can help you with "EASE"! <Read More>

Nationwide Training Close to Home

Fire-Lite's Training Academies cover the elements of basic fire alarm systems through advanced programming of Fire-Lite systems. Courses are formatted to help you grow in the fire business by offering hands-on training provided by NICET certified trainers as well as CEU credits upon course completion. Visit the Training section of the website for more details on the different Academies available.